retells the biblical story of David's friendship with Jonathan who interceded with his father King Saul when that ruler wished to kill David out of envy

Rowe examines David and Jonathan's friendship in the context of what ancient readers would have understood as the natural loyalty to their families. Rowe focuses on the conflicting moral goods between which the men choose, seeking to understand the dynamics of the narrative consonant with ancient society. Rowe discusses theoretical issues of interpretation and summarises how Bakhtin's theory of heteroglossic voices can be utilised to understand the narrative. He deliberates over the key aspects of family life in the world described by the Old Testament, surveys approaches to the study of the family among anthropologists, and finally states how anthropology can inform the interpretation of the biblical text starting from the concept of hegemonic masculinity. Rowe examines how men in general are presented positively and then shows how Jonathan, David, and Saul measure up to these standards. Rowe concludes that although Jonathan was disloyal to his family, something that implied readers would have censured the Books of Samuel, present this disloyalty as honourable, thus making a theological point about fidelity to the house of David.

The narrative of David and Jonathan in the Hebrew Bible is one of the most beloved stories of friendship and loyalty. This thesis is an exegesis of 1 Samuel 20:1-21:1, which recounts David and jonathan s parting after david discovers with the help of jonathan what were saul s true intentions towards him the primary aim of this study will be to explore the covenant between jonathan and david by asking questions such as the following what kind of covenant was it what did it entail why did they make it to answer these questions this thesis also investigates the history of interpretation of the passage and the concept of covenant in the hebrew bible it argues that david and jonathan shared a parity covenant which while serving their respective political needs also became a self giving and self emptying friendship
